

How To Get Up From A Fall

After you fall, panic is often your first reaction. However, how you react after a fall can cause more injuries than the fall itself. If you try to get up too quickly or in the wrong position you may make an injury worse.

Remember to take several deep breaths, assess the situation and determine if you are hurt. But if you feel strong enough to get up and you are not hurt or have any broken bones, follow these steps provided by the American Academy of Orthopedic surgeons.

1) Try to fall on your side or buttocks. Roll over naturally, turning your head in the direction of the roll.

2) If you can, crawl to strong, stable furniture like a chair, and pull yourself up. Approach the chair from the front and put both hands on the seat.

3) Slowly, begin to rise. Bend whichever knee is stronger; keep your other knee on the floor.

4) Slowly twist around and sit in the chair.

5) Write down what happened, and tell your caregiver and physician.

ResponseLink offers information for general educational and informational purposes only. This information is not intended as a substitute for advice, treatment, or recommendation from health care professionals. The information is not exhaustive and does not cover all fall related ailments, physical conditions, or their treatment. It is important to follow the advice of your doctor and other health care professionals regarding your individual health care needs.

Copyright 2008, The F.I.P.'s Program and all related material is the Property of ResponseLink, As such it is not to be reproduced without permission. For information contact 1-801-955-4949